Things to be aware of (Please tick the box)

☐ By ticking this box, I/we declare that I/we am/are aware of the following (as provided by ASIC):

- Registering a business name does not give the holder exclusive name rights. The holder may be subject to legal action for using a business name that has the potential to mislead the public;
- The holder may be inadvertently infringing someone else's trade mark with the proposed business name. Choosing a business name that infringes an existing trade mark can be a costly exercise—it could mean hefty legal bills, drawn out disputes and even the closure of the business. That is why it's important to undertake a trade mark (TM) check. Visit IP Australia to search trademarks;

- A holder that is part of a franchise needs consent from the franchise owner to use the business name. Visit the Franchise Council of Australia for more information about franchises;
- The holder should check for any state or territory business licences that may be required. Get tailored information about government-related licences, registrations and permits at the Australian Business Licence and Information Service (ABLIS).;
- The holder may want to register a domain name in addition to the business name. For more information and to search for available domain names before applying for a business name see the Australian Domain Name Administrator (AUDA).;
- ASIC's privacy notice available on the ASIC website explains how ASIC collect and disseminate the information provided in this application.

- If the Business Name Holder is a partnership – each partner of the partnership;
- If the Business Name Holder is an unincorporated association or other body, each member of the committee of management of the unincorporated association or body;
- If the Business Name Holder is a trust – each trustee of the trust;
- If the Business Name Holder is a joint venture – each joint venture partner.

I/we declare that I/we have not been disqualified from managing corporations under section 206B (1) of the Corporations Act 2001;
